Harriman on the Witness Stand

Keeping His Railroad Secrets

Mention has been made of a Mr. James Garland, who had a yacht upon which you and your mother used to take trips when you first came to New York. Now tell us all about those trips?"

Well, we used to go out for little trips with Mr. Garland-mamma and I. Once we went out to sea and both of us got sick. So after that we alr ways went up the river. Mamma was always along.'

"Did anything improper ever occur on those trips?"

"Did your mother always accompany you on these yachting trips?"

When did you first learn, even remotely, that your name had been mentioned in connection with Mr. Garland's divorce suit?"

"I first learned it when Mr. Jerome mentioned it to me here on the stand the other day.'

Why was your friendship with Mr. Garland broken off?" When he found I knew Stanford White he came to mamma and told her Stanford White was an improper character for a girl to be associated with, and that if the intimacy with White continued, he would have nothing more to do with us."

"Is Mr. Garland dead now?" said Delmas.

"He is," said the girl.

"Did you ever stay over night on the Garland yacht?" continued Relmas. MAMMA ALONG WITH HER.

"Once we went up the Sound on a Saturday and did not return until the next day. Mamma was along and looked after me. We had a stateroom to clede Construction Company were. "You state that you received at one time $50 that was sent by Mr.

The witness added that these young men o social prominence who sent her flowers had always been exceptionally polite and gentlemanly, You have mentioned some needles resembling darning-needles which you saw in Mr. Thaw's possession in 1904. How did you come to see them?

"They were in his trunk." THOSE TWO OPERATIONS.

'You were operated on twice, I believe, one in 1903 and again in 1904?' "Was the second operation necessitated by the first?"

"Yes, it was-or, at least, so the doctors told me." In objecting to this question Mr. Jerom said: "I desir to expressly disclaim any idea explaining or assuming that this second operation was of a criminal nature. The counsel on the other side has all along refused to make a similar disclaimer regarding the first operation, yet they know a nature of the first operation. I submit that it would be fair for both sides to secure from Dr. Morgan, the partner of Dr. Gull, a certified letter giving the details of this second operation, which would be the best possible evidence regarding its character." Thhen Jerome went on to say that the defense had first raised the point that this witness could not tell the nature of her operation except by hearsay, since she was under the infifuence of ether at the time. Dr. Clement Cleveland prformed the second operation, Mrs. Thaw said. "That is all," said Mr. Delmas, after getting the name of Dr. Cleveland on the record.

This concluded the redirect examination oof the defendant's wife. Jerome arose, seeming still to be brimful of questions, and resenting in another flow of language the mention of men and women of "high social

The District-Attorney submitted for the inspection of the witness one of Thaw's letters forwarded to court to-day by Banker Lyon, of Pittsburg. Before he got as far as a question, however, there started a tiresome, technical argument between Delmas, Jerome and Hartridge over whether letters written by Thaw after June 25 (the day of the tragedy) were ad-

Counsel had originally agreed not to put in letters writen after the crime, but as the letters sent from Pittsburg had just come in Mr. Delmas objected that he had not had an opportunity to examine the correspondence to ascertain whether or not an undesirable letter has slipped in. After much heated talk it was decided not to do anything more in the given. matter to-day, and Evelyn Thaw was excused from the stand at 4.40 o'clock, Que subject to recall by both sides.

Then Dr. Britton D. Evans was called for cross-examination. He had bardly let himself into his seat, however, when an adjournment was taken

"Why, yes; I bought Union Pacific stock at $25 a share in anticipation of these dividends. But I will not answer any questions further as to what I may or may not have done in the few days just before the dividends were declared, and you might as well not ask them. It is a subject to the state of principle." The hearing was adjourned until 10 A. M. to-morrow, when Harriman will take the stand again.

"You state that you received at one time $50 that was sent by Mr. Thaw. How was it sent?"

"In some flowers."

"Yes."

"How did you send it back?"

"How did you send it back?"

"I took it to the stage manager, Mr. Stott, and told him about it. He said. 'Send it back at once,' and I did so. It was a $50 bill."

"A certain man, George Lederer, you met in 1962. Were his relations toward you proper, and was his conduct that of a man who held you in respect and honor?"

"Yes, always."

"Yes, always."

"Yes, always."
